“What if it rains?” was what we were all wondering.

Heading to our spring break mission trip we knew the forecast and we saw the clouds and yet we knew that God had a plan for the twenty students going with us.

And as always God’s plans are the best.

We hit the beach the first day to share the message of salvation just hours after we arrived. One of the students on our trip even made a decision for Christ that first day. I got to lead him, sitting on a picnic table by a pier, in a prayer to commit his life to Christ. What a great day that was!

And then the rain came. We only had two more days of outreach but when it is raining no one goes out on the beach! So we ended up teaching our students how to initiate with their friends using text messages and facebook. During our training times our students reached out and prayed for friends and family that didn’t know Jesus. They even set up appointments with classmates for the week after to use tools they had gotten to trained to use. One girl who had come to Christ only a few months earlier set up 5 appointments to share with her friends back in San Antonio.

Then the last night of the trip another guy gave his life to Christ, a girl rededicated her life to Jesus, and seven people got baptized by our speaker, a local San Antonio area pastor.

Like I said, God’s plans are the best...even when they include a lot of rain!

(Cool stats: spiritual conversations-110, decisions for Christ-5!)

Update on Ransom: Thank you so much for your prayers for Ransom. He is doing so well! It is like he was never sick. We are so grateful that we had your prayer support on his behalf!

Top to Bottom: 1) Chris, a student leader, training others to share their faith. 2) Students initiating with friends using technology due to rain. 4) Sharing on the beach the first day. 5) The guys in the kitchen! 6) Baptism the final night.
