WRANGLER

Macon's new job title at work is "Wrangler" and it is the best job for him. Basically he takes on projects that needs to get done. Many are new projects such as another video for Ethnos360 and traveling with photographer Dale Stroud to get the most amazing photos for our website and magazine. Several projects like this has brought him back into the planning and vision for our Communication department. He loves his job.

Slowly but unsurely...

After years of good health, Macon has had 4 visits to the emergency room in less than a year. In October 2018 he was diagnosed with A-Fib and given medication. In March 2019, heart discomfort led cardiologists to discover a blockage in a major artery. A stint was introduced that resulted in increased energy and optimism for improved health. However, at the end of June, Macon was admitted for emergency surgery due to a perforated colon. Praise this serious issue was addressed immediately and he is recovering well. How thankful we are that this did not happen while he was traveling!

THANKS

Thank you for your prayers for healing and renewed stamina. Like the 'energizer bunny' Macon would like to keep working with our communications team to tell the stories of what God is doing among tribal peoples all over the world.

Would you pray that Macon can safely finish 2019 with anticipated working trips to tribals areas?

Jeremy

Summertime meant travel for Jeremy and his girls with a couple trips to Colombia to visit relatives and a trip back to Guam.

Aly

It was great to see Aly in July while on summer break. She recently bought her first home, and started an animal rescue foundation.

Jessica

The Westerman Family: Allistair is two and Arianalee turned one. Connie starts a new school for 8th grade this August and looks forward to making new friends. Allyn and Jessica are hoping to begin some much needed renovations on their Florida house.
