

an update from your campus missionaries

the LAMBfamily

Campus Crusade for Christ at Cal Poly & Cuesta

Our mission is to...

WIN students to Christ

An extremely popular tradition with college students on St. Patrick's Day is to start drinking as soon as the bars can legally open, which in CA is 6am, and then just keep drinking the rest of the day. Jullian, a Cuesta student, has a huge heart for lost party students since only a few years ago that was his life. He figured what a better way to bless these students than with pancakes?

Annie & party girl

So the night before St. Patrick's day my Cuesta bible study made 200 pancakes. The next morning at 6am, Jenn and several other Cuesta Crusade students walked up and down downtown near the bars armed with Abbey's red wagon pulling 200 pancakes, syrup, and God's love. There were hundreds of college students dressed in green wearing Jamison beaded necklaces walking from one bar to the next. Some students wanted nothing to do with the pancakes but most students were overjoyed to take free pancakes. They got many comments like "these are the best pancakes ever", and of course everyone would ask "why are you giving free pancakes?" We would respond with something like "to show God's love." Annie, our Cuesta student leader, ended in a great conversation with a girl she recognized from class. At the end they ended up exchanging contact info because the party girl wanted to get involved with Slo Crusade. See more pictures at www.KevinAndJennLamb.com

BUILD students up in their faith

One day while leaving Cuesta's Campus I randomly stumbled upon Miles and Mason. If you remember from an earlier newsletter, Miles and I had led Mason to Christ while sharing on campus. It was super cool for me

Miles and Mason
trying to keep warm

to see several months later Miles still meeting with Mason going through the Bible with him and teaching him what it means to be a Christian.

I like to do fun manly things with the guys I disciple. A few weekends ago some of my guys and a few girls involved with Cuesta Crusade drove down to L.A. for the 3.3 mile "Warrior Dash". In this race we jumped over fire and cars, and crawled through mud to name a few obstacles. Besides realizing I don't have the endurance or body I had in college, I was reminded of the connection and community that comes when you have an adventure with a group of people.

Warrior Dash Crew
covered in mud

SEND them out for Christ

Recently we had an evangelism training with an opportunity to go share your faith afterward. One student, Grace, was so excited to know how to approach people and talk about her faith in a non-threatening way. She said afterward, "that was great, I am going to do that during my breaks instead of just sitting in my car." See a video of Grace talk about her experience at our ministry blog.

Contact Information

1598 Monterey St. SLO, CA 93401

Kevin.lamb@uscm.org;

Jen.lamb@uscm.org

805.550.7774-Kevin

805.550.6676-Jenn

kevinandjennLamb.com

We are so very thankful for you!!!