

NEWSLETTER TAKEOVER

THIS IS MY STORY

BY MEGAN PRUITT

As many of you know, this is usually a newsletter that my parents write every three months to keep everyone updated on their ministry. However, this one is going to be a little different. I, Megan Pruitt, am taking over this newsletter to tell my side of the story.

The past few months have been a little crazy. My brother and I finished our junior year of college. I moved back home, and I've had the opportunity to live with my parents again. Most college students might complain about that, but it's honestly been such a blessing to spend time with them. I started a new summer job in Northwest Arkansas, and Ethan spent his summer working with missionary kids in Springfield, Missouri.

My parents, on the other hand, have been traveling like nobody's business.

They spent the entire month of April on the road and got back just in time to help Ethan and I move out of school. This was actually the very first time they've been here to help us move out, and I couldn't appreciate it more. From there, they've been traveling every weekend and occasionally during the week to different church services across the state of Arkansas and over state lines. They just got back from their two-week missionary renewal in Springfield, Missouri, and I couldn't be happier. I had to stay in Arkansas by myself, and I've missed the company.

For me, iteneration is a bittersweet time. I know they're preparing to go back to Ecuador to do what the Lord has called them to do, but I also can't help but want them to stay. I love my family, and the hardest times are when we're apart. I know their calling is more important than my selfish feelings though. I've spent the last ten years of my life as a missionary kid, and you slowly forget which place feels more like home. While I'm Arkansan through and through, I definitely left a piece of my heart in the beautiful country of Ecuador, and I know my parents did the same. The separation is hard, but God's plan is more than worth it.

Ecuador Update

Some of you may have already seen this update on Facebook, but Pastor Luzmila was recently elected the Vice President of her community. This is a huge honor and blessing because of how much the leadership in this community has been an obstacle during our ministry. We truly believe that God is opening the doors for his gospel in this community, and we are very excited to continue the work there.

Please continue to lift this community up in your prayers.

Even though I'll miss them more than anything, it's time for my parents to get ready to go back home. However, they can't do that without your commitment to help them with their ministry. They're still trying the raise about $500 in monthly support. If you're willing to partner with them, a pledge form can be filled out online through the Support Us tab on their website, or feel free to give them a call!

My dad's phone number is (479) 387-5757, and he's more than willing to talk about ministry, the Razorbacks, and good coffee.

However, while they're gone, I need someone to commit to helping me with any car trouble I have. During my last three years in the United States, this has been a continuous battle and stressor for me.

I hope you enjoyed reading their story from my perspective. If you want updates on my life, feel free to follow me on Instagram @megan_pruitt or friend me on Facebook @Megan Pruitt!

TO OUR CURRENT SUPPORTERS

BY SHANNON AND SUSAN PRUITT

Thank you for your support. We wouldn't be where we are without you, and as we go into our next term, we will continue to depend on your faithful giving to reach the unreached. Our biggest goal for this next term will be to finish our training center where we will equip future pastors with the knowledge and skills to establish congregations throughout the highlands of Ecuador. This will lead us one step closer to reaching the Quichua Indians. Again, we cannot do this without you, and we are continually grateful for your partnership.
