The Walking Dead. Do you watch it? This is the first question Jack asked me after I (Nich) had grabbed some cafeteria food and sat down across from him. We were waiting for Steven to arrive, and were going to have lunch together and then join Jack and his dorm mates for their PE class. Jack shared that as he watches the show he thinks about how crazy the characters are - how sick they seem. He then jumped to asking us about an incident that happened on New Year's Eve in our neighboring city where 46 people were trampled to death after a crowd of people ran after fake money. "These people aren't much different," Jack said. "They are just as crazy."

I was planning on asking Jack if he wanted to attend a Bible study that we were having on Fridays. He said that although he already knows a little about Jesus, since watching The Walking Dead he is more interested in learning more about his life. "Yes," he says. "I will also ask my dorm mates to come." Pray for our Friday Bible Study!

With the winter months comes a significant drop in temperature, but although outside is cold, our hearts, hands and bellies are staying warm. Naomi has become quite the hostess, and as we have students and other guests come over she is quick to share her stuffed animal friends with everyone. At our Christmas parties, she took her job of passing out the cookies she and Tricia baked and decorated very seriously, making sure that everyone got one - even if they didn't want one. Naomi and Tosh are quite the pair playing and giggling often, and always bringing a smile to our students' faces, as they try in their own capacities to help. In all we had 44 students attend our parties where they each heard the Gospel. Pray for Naomi & Tosh, that they will continue to grow as our Lord's great helpers, as well as for these students, many of whom are learning about Jesus and the Bible for the very first time.

Also in December, we got the extra treat of having my older brother, Zach, come to visit us. Being homesick lately, it was so special to spend time with him and have an actual family member be with our whole team. It was especially encouraging because in late November, we had to send one of our men, Peter, back to the States to work on some personal issues where it was more conducive for him to grow. Pray for continual physical and relational health for our family and team.

Nich's brother Zach, Nomi & Tosh

We are thankful for your friendship and partnership in changing students' lives through Jesus. God continues to use you mightily in our lives, in the hearts of students in East Asia and our future leaders around the world. We love and appreciate you! Happy New Year!

Blessings,

NICH & Tricia
