Dear ones,

Thank you for your part in this ministry. YOU are equipping THM to further the work in planting and supporting 100 churches in Haiti. Here is an update from Pastor Wiljean, one of our partners, as he shares what is happening on the ground in Haiti this summer. With the last box of college gear packed neatly in the car Zac called out to me to look up. With his wallet in hand he began to show me the pictures tucked away inside. There is one of his sister being silly, his brother 4 years younger than he, a family picture of all of us together and a couple photos of him as a baby. Goodness, dear Jesus hold my heart, it's so heavy... quietly prayed while sweet tears welled-up. He will miss us.

One of my greatest joys in life is to cheer for this boy, after all I have been praying for him for 25 years! Before he was born experts then had no answers to my suffering and after a month-long hospital stay with Zac he arrived six-weeks early. I had learned then what it means to TRUST God. In that choosing trust come nuggets of peace. Yes, the peace that I can not understand. To TRUST God is the key to doing life well, it is believing that God is enough, that He is able to do all, be all, the ALL in ALL. No debating, no clarifying or confirming needed, nothing to add on... simply eyes and heart on God.

Let go now, mamma bear, I heard deep in my soul, peace rising up. I found myself wanting to release Zac and leave him; joy overflowing!

In that hospital altar moment almost 20 years ago Jesus showed up and loved me~ he cared for me and was good to me; I dare not hold on to this kid now for if I do he will miss-out on the God of the universe, the very same God who showed himself to me during that hospital stay calling me to Trust Him.

I Trust that the God of the universe has you, Zac... I know full well, because He had me even before you were born.

I love you, Jesus.

love, kathy
