

EPIC QUEST BY JOE CHAU

February 2009

"Who or what is God to you?", I asked

I was conducting a "Quest" survey at Drexel University in Philadelphia as part of the day of outreach at the Epic East Coast Conference. Over 100 students were sent to north Philadelphia, Drexel University and University of Pennsylvania to take the initiative to share the gospel of Jesus Christ.

"Well, I keep trying to find Him but, He's not there or He doesn't give any signs that He's there", replied James, a freshman biomed engineering student of Vietnamese descent.

I smiled inside, knowing with unshakeable certainty that the Lord had led me to this young man today. We continued our conversation in the dining hall where I met him. It was pretty surprising that the staff at the dining hall let us into the facility without campus ID, but God was opening doors and we were walking through them. As I looked around there were conversations going on everywhere as Epic students from all over the east coast, were taking the initiative to share the gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit and leaving the results up to God.

As I finished the 6 question survey with James, he began to ask me questions about God and other religions. I took time to answer his questions and then I shared the gospel with James, using the "Knowing God Personally" booklet. We prayed together after he indicated that he wanted Jesus in his life. And at last we exchanged contact info (which I would pass on the staff at Drexel University). As I was leaving I asked, "Do you have anymore question for me, James?"

"Yeah, Joe, I was just trying to figure out why God sent you to me today?", he asked.

"Because He loves you James, and He was looking for you even more than you were trying to find Him."

Please pray for:

1. Good health for our family so we can all go to big break.
2. Epic students to learn discipleship like Christ and not just ministry skills.
3. Students to submit interns applications
4. Growth and protection for our local church.
