Dearest Supporters,

Greetings from New Staff Training! I'm currently at Colorado State University with about 210 fellow trainees from all over the country. To begin with the big news, my next assignment will be back with the team at Cal State Fullerton! Over the past few days, I've experienced great joy and many tears over this decision. I'm thrilled to be back at CSUF but also long to be with the Japanese staff and students. The plan is for me to spend one to two years back in Fullerton and then return to Japan. I am so thankful to have two amazing places, Southern California and Tokyo, as part of my future plan!

Training has been exciting and intense. In our two seminary classes, we studied so many topics, ranging from the attributes of God to the theories of eschatology. My favorite assignment was to interview people about their worldviews. I was in awe that my homework involved asking people what they believe about Jesus! Please pray for Matt, Clair, and Jessica to continue to ponder the opportunity to know God personally.

I've also been part of a volleyball intramural league. Initially, I was pretty intimidated since everyone seemed super experienced compared to me. Then, during the second match, I started to have fun and really bonded with my teammates! Basketball is next!

Spiritually, I've been challenged as we've studied subjects so important to my life and close to my heart. It has been a privilege to hear from numerous speakers who are passionate about the Word of God. I am so thankful for the community of people I'm learning with! Thank you for your prayers!

Sincerely,

Christina
