Tara leads a life group—Summer Project

I keep sharing about my summer in these letters because the students who were part of the Boston Summer Project have returned to campus as key leaders. Tara from Babson is no exception. Here's what she shared about leading a "life group" bible study

"What makes or breaks this group is not only our study of the Word, but whether or not the girls (in my case) felt comfortable to open up about who they are and their lives. The first time I led the group, I was pretty nervous. While I was preparing the bible study, I felt God asking me to do something that I was trying to avoid. I have always felt the need to meet high expectations; so naturally, I wouldn't want to tell others of sins I have struggled with. However God has really been working on my heart to admit to myself and to others how much we need Christ in light of all of our sins.

So I made the decision to share these struggles with my group, even though I wasn't sure how they would receive this information. I have to say, this was one of the biggest blessings God has given me, because this group of girls was so supportive and understanding. As a result, all 3 of the other girls opened up about their struggles, and our bond of sisters in Christ was definitely strengthened.

I looked forward to our Life Group time every week, because I knew God would speak to us through the Scriptures and the other girls in my group would continue to share their hearts with everyone. These were definitely some of the great moments of mine on the summer project, but the Lord really helped me grow throughout the entire experience."

It's letters like that from students that make me realize why I'm doing what I do. It also makes me realize how thankful I am for each of you. I thank you so much for your continued support. God Bless,
