

A New Way to Share

We just had to share this exciting development with you. You may remember, from an email this summer, that a girl, Karem, who was on summer project with us had made a decision to follow Jesus two years earlier after reading articles and stories of how other college students had come to know Jesus on a website. Well, the website she had visited was CadaEstudiante.com. A number of years ago, as DeAnn and I were looking at the ministry in Mexico we noticed a need for a website which students could use to easily share Christ with their friends or for a student with questions to visit to find Biblical answers. There is a website in English called EveryStudent.com which has been extremely effective at reaching US college students. So we headed up an effort to get EveryStudent.com translated into Spanish and CadaEstudiante.com was the result.

One of the exciting things about this for us is that even though we are gone, God is still reaching Mexican college students through the website. In fact, we wanted to share this with you because one of the last developments we were involved with was setting up a Google-based advertising campaign. The results have truly been amazing. Sometimes statistics can be just numbers but when you see the lives behind these numbers you can understand why we would write them out here!

The internet is an increasing influence on today's college students in most of the world. And Latin America is no exception. With all the lies/junk out there vying for the minds of students, it is great to have a tool like this that shares the truth! Another real benefit of this site is that people arrive at the site on purpose. They want to know the answer to their question!

	Sep-07	Oct-07
visits to the site	87,657	104,308
indicated decisions	2,318	2,782

Please pray for the continued reach of this website and the truth that it contains. We are trusting God that due to the increased visits to this site there will be many more Karem's this year and in the years to come!

Prayer and Praise:

- 1) Both a prayer and a praise. We are still in the process of raising support. Please pray that God would continue to provide and that we would be able to get to campus as soon as possible. The praise is that God has been providing. We are blessed to have a number of new ministry partners!
- 2) Pray that CadaEstudiante.com would continue to reach college students throughout Latin America.
- 3) We are still needing to sell our house in Mexico. We do have an offer on our house right now that we have accepted. That is great news! However, please pray because this process is quite a bit different and more drawn out in Mexico than in the States and this is definitely not a "sure thing."
