A few Highlights

June 18, 2018

Women's time. Friends of mine let us use their back yard, which totally ministered to the women.

Our focus of the evening was celebration. Rather than compare and compete as women, let us celebrate what God is doing in and through each other.

One student commented, "Woah the talk about comparison and competition was legit!!! Mind, blown."

Another said, "I enjoyed the topic of competitiveness and comparison because I really struggle with this."

The talk I gave went well. But honestly, I think they were mostly impacted by my 40-year walk with God. They seemed to grasp the impact of choosing to meet with God and walk with Him day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year.

Amy, Seren, Me, Michelle, and Rachel.

It was so special to go deep with these women. We studied I Thessalonians and talked significantly about our lives.

Seren said, "Not only do I know how to share my faith now, I am also more qualified. God did a lot of work in my life; I've been transformed."

And Rachel, "I've come to love being a learner and avid consumer of the Word again."

Thanks for your prayers. I'm grateful for the opportunity to walk so closely with students, helping them learn and grow, and to be involved in outreach together, too.

Next week, I'll be in South Hadley, MA and then Delaware. Let me know if you are around and have time for a visit. And feel free to reach out with prayer requests.
