

Doing magic tricks in the cafeteria during lunch helped get the word out about the MAZE.

Praying together with student leaders before the event and preparing for collecting the comment cards for follow up.

Up late with students entering the comments and contact information for follow up.

AMAZING RESULTS from the MAZE OUTREACH

University of Maine
400 in attendance
38 indicated decisions for Christ

Husson University
310 in attendance
87 Indicated decisions for Christ

Thank you for your prayers. I loved being there both nights participating in what God was doing. The students at University of Maine have already followed up those interested. Thankfully, a few alumni have come alongside the students at Husson and are helping them follow up the 87. I don't recall any outreach I have personally been a part of with such a high response rate. Praise God for those whose lives He touched! Please pray for God's ongoing work in their lives.

October 17-19, I will be on a road trip in Vermont. Our plan is to prayer walk a few campuses and do some exploring to see where God is at work. Please pray for God to direct our steps.

I thank God for you and your partnership in the Gospel! The message we have of God's love truly is good news. May God use us to bring people to Jesus.

Amazed,

A story from the pair who followed up Stephen from the MAZE outreach:*

He had been one of the participants in the show, and talked with us about that for awhile. When we brought up the spiritual stuff, he got much more serious as he shared that he'd thought about spiritual things a lot through most of his life, but had never talked to anyone about it. He's a genuine searcher, but felt quite alone in the search, and had never heard what Christians believed before (except for what's in tv shows and movies).

We asked if we could share the basics Christians believe, and went through the Knowing God Personally presentation of the gospel. He had a lot of questions, but was really focused and attentive the whole time. It was all new to him, but he was clearly very interested in continuing the conversation. When we explained that Cru was meant to be a context for students to talk about their spiritual lives, he expressed more interest. And lots more questions.

There are specific issues he's concerned about, but when I explained that the first thing I wanted him to consider was Jesus (the main beliefs of Christianity), I think he understood and agreed that core beliefs were a better way to determine if he wants to be a Christian than more tertiary doctrines... and took the booklet home to reread and think about the gospel more. Pray he'd believe it, and come to Cru to connect with other spiritually-minded students who can point him towards Christ.

Pray for us to have meaningful convos with students like Stephen who are searching and longing for spiritual truth but haven't known where to find it.

Thank you .

not his real name*