We hit a grand slam. Taking the staff, who were new to New York City, to the Poconos in Pennsylvania to process their life and ministry was immensely helpful.
Read a couple of their comments:

Thank you so much for your generosity in providing this time for us. My spirit has been refreshed and I see more clearly how God is calling me to walk with health and confidence. I am expectant for how God will bear fruit in my life, our team and the work in NYC.

This was such a blessing. I was hurting and the Lord really met me here. Thank you so much for your generosity. I needed this so much. This weekend really has made a difference and I will not go back to NYC the same.

We have learned that moving to New York City to do ministry is a lot like going overseas. Because of that, our team is working to help our staff with the transition, growth, understanding, and learning that is necessary to be effective in reaching students and faculty with the gospel. The getaway to the Poconos was one part of that.

Thank you for your prayers and financial gifts that get translated into people hearing about Jesus in New York City, the Northeast, and the world.

It was 30 years ago that I entered full-time ministry. Thank you for your partnership; together we are making a difference.
