

A sampling of students' takeaways from the Northeast Winter Conference.

Maya - Hunter College "For a long time, it had been hard for me to see God as compassionate, because my church did not reflect God's character, and it really damaged my faith. I'd asked God if He could use the winter conference to talk to me, and He did. Compassion was a topic at WC, and God acknowledged and tended to my wounds there. I learned to keep my eyes on Him, not on others. I came home super on fire for God, and my Cru team at my college has also witnessed God move in our campus events ever since the conference. I'm praying to keep the fire burning!"

Perla - The Fashion Institute Of Technology "Winter Conference was a life-changing experience for me. It was so beautiful to see the Lord move in the lives of so many people. I was able to witness my friends take big steps of faith, and take part of all the Lord is doing in our generation. In my campus, we are seeing the fruits of that incredible weekend; students willing to go out to the nations to spread the good news of salvation. I believe this is the beginning of a beautiful season the Lord is preparing for students in NYC and Northeast. So incredibly blessed to be part of a community that's so on fire for Jesus."

Renisha - Brooklyn College felt God teaching her to have greater faith and trust in Him, realizing how vital it is to share the good news.

Chessie - Brooklyn College felt called to dedicate more time to studying the Bible and is even considering going overseas for missions!

Thanks for your prayers. It is so encouraging seeing this generation respond to the Lord, to draw near to Him, to surrender to Him, and to gain God's heart for others to know Him. It's such a privilege to have a part in this with you.

God is reaching this generation and also using this generation. It's fun to see. I hope my letters give you little glimpses into the work of God.

I'm grateful for you.

Throughout the month of March campuses have a week long spring break, which gives us a great opportunity to invite students to invest their week in helping others know the Lord. While campuses in upstate New York are traveling to a few different locations, New York City staff and students are hosting a few campuses from the south to work alongside them in the city. This is a great opportunity for students to learn to share the gospel with others and to experience God using them. Of course it builds their own faith in the process and they make great friends on the trip. Our staff and students in New York City will be right there with them and will be doing all the follow up. I will be joining them in New York City March 11-14.

This week I'm going to Ithaca and Syracuse. I'm excited to be spending time with our staff and students at Ithaca College, SUNY Cortland, Cornell, Syracuse, and SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry.
