Full Circle in the Capital: Obinna's Story

We kicked off the new year in an incredible way! Over winter break, I took 16 of our amazing students down to Washington, D.C., for Cru's Winter Conference, joining a sea of about 750 students from all over! We spent the week being poured into by speakers who reminded us how vital it is to stay rooted in the Word. One of the coolest moments was seeing the collective impact of the conference during the day of outreach: 426 spiritual conversations happened in just one day, with 43 people saying 'yes' to Jesus! Beyond the numbers, it was the individual heart-change that blew me away. Many of our students committed to big steps of faith. From how they'll spend their time on campus, to where God is calling them after college. One of the highlights of the trip was watching Obinna's journey come full circle. He just accepted Christ earlier this fall semester. Seeing him out on the National Mall in D.C. boldly sharing his faith during our outreach day was a total joy! But what I really loved was at the end of the conference. When we asked what God had taught everyone during the conference, Obinna took it a step further. He shared a powerful testimony of how radically God has changed his entire life over this past semester. It was such an encouraging reminder of the life-change happening right here in Buffalo.

Spring semester is officially in full swing!

Of course, 'Spring' looks a little different here in New York than it did in California, where, instead of sunshine, there are several feet of snow, but the ministry is heating up. (like what I did there :) This semester, I'm having a blast heading up our ministry at Daemen University. It's a cozy campus of about 3,000 students, while the rest of my team reaches out to the 30,000 students at University at Buffalo.

I've been so encouraged to work alongside two incredible student leaders, Faith and Matt. We've been dreaming big, planning events, and sharing the teaching. We're currently a small group of 12, but the depth of conversation, seeing their spiritual growth, and their hearts is huge. So grateful to be part of what God is doing on this campus!"

Thank you for your prayers as these students continue to walk in faith!
