

One of the things I (Kevin) love most about working with Cru is helping Non-Christians truly understand their need for Jesus and all that comes with that. I have been meeting with 2 guys this semester that are exploring Christianity. Kevin a junior cross-country runner at Daemen College, one of the best collegiate runners in the state is one of those guys. His goal is to be the best. But after he won a major race he told me, "I thought I would feel a lot more satisfied". As we meet he so badly wants to believe all that he hears about Christianity, but he doesn't want to believe because it sounds goods. So we are reading through a good apologetics book right now and meeting up several times a week. He goes to all the Cru events and just last weekend he started coming to church with our family. Kevin is just so curious. I get frequent texts at 5 am when he wakes up to run, asking a variety of questions. Here are a few: "Are there any good prayers before school/doing homework?" "Could someone become addicted to God?" and "Why do people need God or Jesus to be "good" people?"

Kevin with cross-country teammates

But I think this text really shows where Kevin is at currently: "I feel like I need God because he'll make my life better. However, I don't necessarily want that because I can't just want Him for that reason because I want Him to be there even when life is not good. I believe He can give hope when things are hopeless. I don't know that for sure, I'm just assuming."

Kevin is so close and he diligently pursuing to know if God really is who Christians claim He is. Would you be praying with us for Kevin. Honestly it's also because of you that college students like Kevin get to hear the gospel in Buffalo and beyond.

Thank you for investing in what God is doing.
Thank you for investing in changed lives.
Thank you for investing in college students.

Thank you for investing in us.

We love you and are deeply thankful for your partnership with us.

Jenn and I are totally blown away by your generosity and care for us. We know you love college students (many of you were involved in something like Cru while you were students, or wish you were, or hope your kids will be). We know you love God and want people to know him. And we know you love praying for and/ or giving to something as strategic as reaching students in Buffalo with the good news of the Gospel. Thank you.

Thank you for partnering with us through your prayers and/or gifts to bring the message of hope to students like Kevin.

Yours in Christ,

Kevin, Jenn, Abigail (8), David (6), Peter (4), Madeline (2) Lamb