Free Swag never goes out of style.

We are always trying to talk to new students who may have never heard the Gospel. Your partnership allows us to go to campus and give away free things to open up conversations with college students. One of my (Kevin) favorite conversations this past month was with a Buffalo State freshman girl that came to our booth interested in spinning our prize wheel. She asked, “what is this club.” I said, “We are Cru, a Christian group on campus.” She quickly answered, “Oh I am atheistic, and don’t believe in God.” Then out of true curiosity I asked her, “Out of curiosity what do you believe? How do you think we are here, or how there is so much design in our world?” We went on to have a good conversation where she said she didn’t know what she believed and just said she was atheistic because she really hasn’t put much thought into God. I told her a bit about what Cru believes and for me looking into the life of Jesus really changed my life. As our conversation was coming to an end I gave her a Knowing God Personally booklet and a flyer to our weekly meeting and said “you should check us out, Cru is really a safe place to look more into God and what the Bible says.” She said she would think about it, and left our conversation saying, “you know it is funny normally I don’t talk about God much but you are the 2nd conversation I have had this week about God, the other was with some of my friends that are Christian”. Without the swag we would have never had that conversation about Jesus.

Some Family News

I (Jenn) want to share some news about my involvement with Cru. After more than 19 years, God has made it clear to Kevin and I that it is time for me to step away from my main responsibilities with Cru in Buffalo. I will wrap up my full time work by the beginning of November. For the past several months I’ve been praying for clarity. I’ve also had some really helpful conversations with good friends inside and outside of Cru who know me very well. This has not been an easy decision, but I am at peace and excited for what God has for our future. I also feel a million other emotions and have had many tears as I really do love Cru and the students and believe in the mission and vision.

I do plan to still volunteer with Cru, meeting up with students and our staff from time to time. And I always love hosting events at our home. Please reach out if you have any questions, my number is 805-550-86676 and since I will still be volunteering with Cru you can still email me at Jen.lamb@cru.org. Thank you for how you have been a part of my ministry because you have made a difference in students’ lives and in our family’s life as well. I am truly grateful.

We’d so appreciate your continued prayers during this transition. Also, we would love for you to continue with your giving as Kevin will still be full time and our family will be living off his income.

Love, Jenn
