Getting clarity; experts say it's an essential first step to reaching your full potential and fulfilling your destiny. To see God's destiny for our lives more clearly requires us to take a hard look at ourselves and ask questions like:

- How uniquely has God made you?
- How does He want to use your life experience to impact others?
- What is your individual destiny?
- What is our common destiny?

When the answers allude us, our destiny is unclear like in a foggy mirror or a dark glass. It's not until we develop a mature spiritual insight that we achieve clarity from the one who knows us inside and out—our Lord and Creator.

This upcoming MLK weekend, January 14-17, we will be heading to San Antonio for the National Destino Winter Conference. This looks to be the biggest Destino gathering yet with about 150 students registered already! The 3 day conference described above will be a great time for our students to connect with one another, meet new students from around the country, grow in their understanding of Christ, and gain a clearer vision for how God can use them. We have been blessed to receive some scholarship money for our students, as many couldn't afford the conference and the trip to Texas. God has provided a lot, but please pray that every student that wants to attend will have the means necessary. Paul and our teammate Sandy will be renting a van to drive a group from California to save on travel costs. Pray for safety on the roads for them. Trina and the rest of the team will be flying out a day early to get things set up for students to arrive. Pray that God would move powerfully in the lives of everyone there and that we would see a greater impact on our campuses as a result. Thank you!

TCU wins Rose Bowl!

On a fun side note, TCU (Trina's alma mater), just had an historic win at the Rose Bowl. It was a fun game that brought me a lot of Horned Frog Pride—so much that I had to make this letter purple! We spent the day watching the game with Paul's UCLA friends, as they have an annual reunion on New Year's Day.

Winter/Spring Classes Starting

After a wonderful holiday break, we are now back to the "routine" again. Some quarter schools started this week, while other semester schools won't begin until the last week of January. Please pray for new students to be introduced to Christ and get plugged into community at Cal State Fullerton, Cal Sate Long Beach, Cal Poly Pomona, UCLA, and USC. More updates and prayer requests for outreaches and events should be coming to cccupdate.blogspot.com.
