

f o o d

Food 4 thought

I'm going to welcome you into my [Kyle] brain for a little bit here, hopefully that won't be too scary. I was recently reading Proverbs 10:21. The verse instructs that our words can feed people and I was struck with the thought that our words can literally energize them, keep them going and bring them life. This only happens as I myself am being fed by God's Word.

Avery swinging in the spring

I was challenged in how I can approach my times with God. That it can become exercise and not a place of desperateness to meet my own spiritual hunger.

Back to my ability to feed others though...I've had such great meditation on that verse and the implications with my kids or the students I work with. Even with peers, family members, whoever. That as I feed on God's Word I have an abundance to share with others. I can share the fresh things that I'm learning with other hungry people.

I've also thought about the opposite, which is that my words can starve others or hurt them. Or that my lack of sharing what I'm learning, or an encouraging word, can actually disconnect me from people...especially people I care about.

I love so much that God is so active, that he gives me just what I need and loves me so aggressively. Please feel free to drop us an email, note or card with what you are learning. We love to hear from you all and love to know what to pray for!

Random stuff

Well, we have decided to enter the 21st century... we have a website.

kyleandwendy.com just went active and we'd love for you to check it out. Our hope is that it would be an easy place to connect with us, through a couple blogs [personal and ministry] where you can see prayer requests or events that are coming up. You will also be able to see some great pictures and send us messages.

-- The spring break trips to Mexico went great! Our students did a great job on the service projects and in inviting non-Christian friends to join our time there. A couple of those friends have been coming around to our meetings since then which has been awesome!

--Please pray for our end of year transitions [SDSU and UCSD] as we pick new leaders for the fall.

--Please pray for the seniors in our ministries which are graduating. It is exciting to send so many into the workforce where they will continue to influence others for Christ, yet it is also sad to see our relationships change with people we have gotten close to over the last 4-5 years.

*In His grip,
Kyle, Wendy, Malia, Carter & Avery*