Religious and Irreligious

Both need to experience the freedom Christ offers. One afternoon at the CRU Big Break Conference a couple of us from NIU approached a group of college aged men and women who looked like they were settled in for an afternoon of drinking in the rays, and beers. Our goal that day was to engage people in conversation about different world views ranging from such topics as the nature of God, the nature of humanity, and who was Jesus.

We said hello and introduced ourselves, explaining why we were out on the beach that day. Two of them, Gabe and Josh, replied immediate with one word, busted. You see, it turns out that this whole group was from a Christian college in South Carolina. Their faces seemed to show instant guilt and shame. But rather than judge them with feelings of superiority the CRU students I was with were loving and gracious. That response totally took them by surprise!

What ensued was a great discussion about God's grace in the gospel. We were able to encourage them not to see their freedom in Christ as an opportunity to indulge the flesh, but to marvel at God's great love and mercy, knowing that it has set us free from the power and penalty of sin and death.

† Mark 2:17

“Those who are well have no need for a physician, but those who are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners.”

Praise God for his faithfulness in providing ministry opportunities over our CRU Spring Break trip to Panama City, FL.

Perspective Cards allow you to come alongside others in their spiritual journey. And, as you ask questions and listen well, you'll find an abundance of opportunities to talk about Jesus, share your perspective, and invite others to respond to the gospel. If you would like to get a set of Perspective Cards please email me and let me know. I'd love to help you get a deck so you can try it out. Thank you so much for partnering with us to help spread the message of Christ!
