

Dear Partner,

You are helping us in our mission to see lost students find new lives in Christ and experience a passion and the equipping to reach others.

Here's example from Alex in his own words:

When I was a freshman in college, I attended Cru's winter conference for college students, called TCX, in the Twin Cities. At this conference I accepted Jesus Christ as my Savior and Lord, and began to live my life for His glory. I am now a 5th year senior and I lead a Cru high school ministry in Madison. I recently volunteered at the winter conference for high schoolers, known as Fast-break, and led a break out seminar where students learned to share the gospel using a small booklet [called "Connecting with God"]. I asked for a volunteer to go through the booklet with as an example, quickly realizing that the student, a freshman named Brady from Anoka High, was not a believer. We went through the booklet as normal and at the end Brady prayed to receive Christ! I was so excited that I asked him if I could hug him afterwards. He obliged.

Praise God for what He is doing. How fun for us to have a few university students like Alex bring a handful of high school students we haven't met to a life-changing conference we didn't attend.

This is what we call multiplying our lives by mobilizing students, and we're thankful you're helping us do it.

TCX 2013 December

We smashed our record by 40 as 206 students from Madison and Whitewater attended our regional TCX winter conference for university students this year. While most of those students were already believers, five of them left with a new faith in Christ.

Super Bowl Connection:

Chris Maragos is another example of someone who grew in his faith in Madison and is now being used to make Christ known. As a UW student he was a leader of the Cru ministry Athletes in Action and had a huge heart reach others with the gospel. Since entering the NFL, he and his wife, Serah, have been intentional witnesses and mentors to NFL players, wives and others around them.

Last October Chris, Russell Wilson, and a couple other Seattle Seahawks made an evangelistic DVD entitled "Making of a Champion". They gave it out to 28,000 fans and posted it online where it has received 390,000+ views.

Interviews and articles have highlighted his journey and faith. Here's the most recent one I've read:
