Impact

Every Monday I continue to meet with Ashley. In our time together we share about what has been going on in our lives, study the Bible, and pray together. She knows that I have been thinking and praying about whether or not to stay in Boston another year. Recently, when we were saying goodbye, she started to get emotional. She told me that she has "never had a mentor relationship like this before" and that she is so thankful that God brought me into her life. This was so touching and encouraging for me to hear. Even though we meet and spend time together every week, I never knew what kind of impact I was making. I cherish my time with Ashley and she is one of the people that makes me love what I do. Please pray that we will continue to grow closer. Also, please pray for my decision about Boston. I feel like I am supposed to be here, but often long for home (especially in the 10 degree weather!). Pray that I will have a peace with whatever I choose to do.

MA is the only state in the U.S. that has to import blood. The state's high level of specialized hospitals combined with a smaller population creates a desperate need for more blood donors. Over 90 students gave blood at the BWC Blood Drive!

Kingdom Come

The theme of our fourth annual Boston Winter Conference (BWC) was Kingdom Come. The three fabulous speakers shared with students how we can glorify God's Kingdom in our family, friendships, and own lives. Above is a group of students from the University of Connecticut with speaker James White. He encouraged students that it's never too late to turn (repent) and say yes to the Kingdom of Heaven. White spoke about The Lord's Prayer by showing how Jesus followed his own directions when he prayed in the garden of Gethsemane. White explained it is okay to ask God to "let this cup pass" but we must remember to end with "not my will, but Thy Will be done."
