

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST

Jessica Joy's JAPAN Journal

AUGUST 7, 2010

Japan's fireworks are AMAZING. But you have to be willing to go with up to 1 MILLION people. I went to one of the smallest shows. Only 20,000 went!

Prayer Points

Thank God for ALL the missions teams that have come out this summer (churches and college students!)*

Thank God that our own students are going to Hokkaido for their own mission trip (8/16-30). Pray this will be a good time of growth for them.*

Summer camps and follow-up with the not-yet Christians. One already happened last week and the other one that I'm going to is this week (8/10-13).*

After camp most of my Japanese friends will be leaving Tokyo until mid-September while I continue on with language school. Also, my neighbor/good friend Kimi moved yesterday. Pray against loneliness for me. Thank you!*

夏Summer Fun 夏

Sow for yourselves righteousness, reap the fruit of unfailing love, and break up your unplowed ground; for it is time to seek the LORD...Hosea 10:12

OK, it's hot. And humid. And I still have school every day. But there's something really fun about Japan's summer. I'm loving it! Maybe it's the fact that fireworks shows or festivals happen every weekend and Japanese dress up in summer kimonos (called yukatas) to go. Or maybe it's the delicious summer fruits and dishes.

Or the fact that from August on, students have a 1-2 month break from school (Japanese students, not me sadly!) so excitement's in the air. Most likely though it's because of your prayers since I initially wasn't super excited about spending summer here. A highlight of the summer has been having the Campus Crusade for Christ summer missions teams here from the U.S. They were here for a total of ten weeks and the last team left last week, but they left behind a lot of new Japanese friends, students who are now "interested in Christianity" (as the students word it), and have inspired our believing students to reach out to their campuses and to go on missions themselves! This month (August) Tokyo Student Impact students are hosting two evangelistic camps. The one I'll be going to this week is completely student run. Only I and one other staff member (Fumi) will attend. We're also excited to send a mission team to Hokkaido on August 16th. Your partnership is making all this possible. Thank you so much!

PSW B Team and Waseda friends

Love, Jessica

So sorry, my website's still down...but you can still reach me at Jessica.Tekawa@gmail.com