

Spraying water all over the hood, I start finding my groove as cars keep filing through the parking lot. Guys are yelling at me left and right: “Hey, missed a spot here!” and “We need water in these buckets.” With each car we are not just rubbing dirt off the cars, we are rubbing shoulders with the fraternity guys of Sig Ep.

After two solid hours of washing cars we finally get a break from the action and I strike up a conversation with Matt, the fraternity president. Eventually I work up the courage and ask him about his spiritual background. “Yeah, I used to go to church with my mom. I’ve just been too busy with school and the fraternity.” I continue to listen as he shares that he’s interested in spiritual things and would even be willing to announce our weekly meetings to the fraternity. We chat some more until our next wave of cars arrives and we continue washing side-by-side.

Luke scrubbing away

Meanwhile, Luke is busy scrubbing sinks and toilets in the Sig Ep house. The fraternity guys were blown away to see us not just helping them with their car wash, but also serving them by cleaning the house. The men’s team had a vision of not only helping the fraternity with their philanthropy event, but radically serving them and displaying the love of Christ in tangible ways. Of course there’s no better picture than cleaning through layers of bathroom dirt; all because we desire to love them. As I’ve mentioned before, we are blessed with amazing student leaders here at Cal Poly. Luke and Jon, our men’s team leaders, are true men after God’s heart who display immense humility through their hearts of service. And that mentality is rubbing off on other men!

Would you be praying for the men of this movement, that God would raise up men who passionately love Jesus and seek to serve, especially the women, with humility? 2 Timothy 2 says, “be strengthened by the grace that is in Christ Jesus...entrust to faithful men who will be able to teach others also.” Ask the Lord to give us grace for wisdom about how to build into and teach men as we trust Him to build an authentic movement at Cal Poly and beyond.

I can’t say much about our spring break trip to ~~East~~ Asia because of security reasons, but I’m REALLY excited about it! We’ll be leaving on March 18th and getting back March 26th. Pray for God’s will to be done in every step that we take there, and for spiritual protection from the enemy.

- find fellowship with other young single men in SLO
 - vision about possibly spending a year in East Asia
 - praise for 50 students attending our recruitment dinner
- more details on my website -----> www.mattwilliamsccc.com