

Dear Friend,

Reaching out to university students is one of the most strategic endeavors imaginable. And, it is also one of the most fun. These future leaders of families and society are also amongst the most open to respond to the gospel and passionately live it out. That's why this Campus Crusade ministry wholeheartedly thanks you for locking arms with us to see God's name proclaimed to students on campuses in Wisconsin and beyond.

And God is at work helping us "turn lost students into Christ-centered laborers." Even before the first day of classes this year, Tyler, a junior, stood up in front of a number of us at our student leadership planning weekend and said, "I am excited for this year because of where I was a year ago. One year ago, while you were at your leadership retreat, I was at a drinking party. I trusted Christ at a Primetime last year, and I am excited for more stories like mine."

At the University of Wisconsin, the Primetime weekly meeting continues to be a critical venue of our ministry with hundreds of students attending. The second week, I spoke about Jesus being the Light of the World and a number of students indicated decisions to trust Christ. Beyond that, students regularly acknowledge how this meeting has challenged, encouraged, and equipped them to live out their faith on campus.

I love the fact that God is raising up men and women on college campuses to reach out to others. Several of our Bible studies have new Christians in them because a student took the time to visit a new student in the dorm this fall and initiated a conversation about Jesus.

Some students are more in the spotlight than others. One of those is Chris Maragos, number 21 on the football team. Many UW football fans know this co-captain's story of being a walk-on athlete. As someone who is passionate about his faith, this influential leader in the Athletes in Action movement finds ways to spur many to consider Christ. Besides leading prayer on the field after games as well as a football Bible study, he's also manages to find time to help our new Greek ministry move forward by sharing his testimony at fraternity house meetings.

Often God uses a lot of people to bring someone to Christ. Katelin, Jenna, and Clare were so excited as they teamed telling a story about Katelin's cousin, Chloe, recently. All three of them had had the opportunity to share Christ with her in various conversations and she ended up placing her faith in Christ at our Fall Getaway last weekend. Katelin and the others were very excited to see Chloe make her way up to the front of the crowd during the sharing time at the end of the weekend and tell publicly about her changed life. She's now a part of Clare's small group, and so eager to grow.

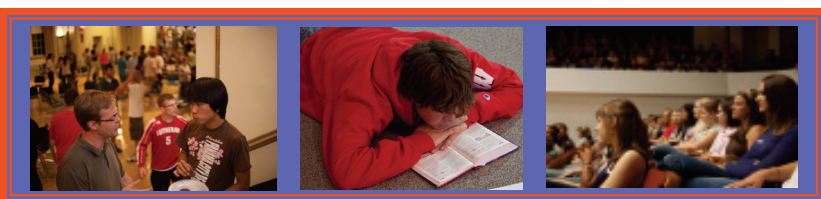

Thanks again for the part you play in helping us "turn lost students into Christ-centered laborers. From large meetings to one-on-one conversations, we're trusting God to use this ministry to reach more and more students who will reach more and more.

May this bring praise to God!

Scott Roe

P.S. As we move forward with ministry this year, we're very aware that finances are tight. If you offered to make a donation at our Fellowship Dinner, and are now able to send in a gift, you may use the envelope enclosed. You may also go to www.WisconsinCCC.com anytime to make gift. If you have any questions about giving, please e-mail me at scott.roe@WisconsinCCC.com or call me at 608-238-700. Your generosity makes a difference. Thank you!

Building Spiritual Movements Everywhere

Have you ever wondered when our various movements meet? While each of our different movements hold lots of meetings for planning, Bible studies, training, outreach, and fellowship, listed below are the days when the main gatherings from several of our movements occur.

You could use this as a daily prayer guide for each of these movements. Pray for our students to lead well and for fruitful evangelism and discipleship.

Monday

Impact (African-American students)
Student Venture (High School students)
University of Wisconsin-Platteville

Tuesday

LifeSkills (UW Marching Band students)
University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

Wednesday

Athletes In Action (Collegiate Athletes)
University of Wisconsin-Platteville

Thursday

University of Wisconsin-Madison
Bridges (International Students)

This year we are also attempting to launch new movements for Madison Fraternity and Sorority students called GreekLife, Madison ROTC students, called Valor, and Athletes In Action in Platteville.

Ask God for success.